

Social Media Guidelines for Students

Responsibility of	Senior Leadership Team
Policy code	SW10
Initial approval	August 2020
Reviewed	March 2021
Next review	March 2024
Approved by	Board of Trustees

Social Media Guidelines for Students

Introduction

Social media is a powerful and present part of everyday life. There are many excellent opportunities for using social media in building community, sharing the Gospel and expanding our networks. However, as people who adhere to Biblical standards, we must also exercise caution in order to uphold our standards of integrity, accountability and love for others.

Social media can:

- Let you express and share your ideas, faith and creativity
- Connect with people and build a network of contacts
- Present yourself to future employers and enhance your career opportunities

But it can also:

- Cause harm to others and yourself
- Damage your reputation with future colleagues or employers
- Put you at risk of legal or disciplinary action

These guidelines are intended to help you get the benefits of social media while avoiding potential problems. It uses a very broad definition of social media: "any technology platform which allows the creation and sharing of content across a virtual community". This definition includes the well-known services like Instagram, Snapchat, Facebook, Twitter, LinkedIn and YouTube, but also smaller services like personal blogs, discussion forums, or even the comment sections on websites. This guide covers your personal social media activity; additional guidelines may be applicable if you are helping to run an official Nexus ICA social media account.

Nothing in these guidelines is intended to limit your freedom of speech or your academic freedom.

The Golden Rule

The golden rule of social media is to assume that anything you put on social media will not stay private, will not stay anonymous, and will stay on the internet forever. So always think before you post and express yourself with care. In particular:

- Don't harass, bully or defame individuals or groups
- Don't reveal confidential or personal information about yourself or other people
- Don't post links to content that is discriminatory or illegal
- Don't breach copyright or intellectual property
- Don't post evidence of you breaking the law

Take particular care if you are using social media with your fellow students, perhaps as part of a band, study group or working on a project together. Think about how others will interpret what you say. Consider using Nexus ICA tools such as Microsoft Teams for this type of collaboration.

What might the consequences be?

Put the wrong things on social media and you risk future employers seeing them, breaking the Nexus ICA Student Code of Conduct and potentially facing disciplinary action, or even getting into trouble with the law.

If your area of study or planned career leads to professional accreditation or has a professional body, they may have their own expected standards of conduct. For example, in positions of pastoral care in churches there are strict rules around confidentiality. Putting the wrong things on social media in this context could lead to disciplinary procedures within your employment.

Excessive use of social media can have a negative impact on your mental health and wellbeing. Take the time to consider the impact that your use of social media is having on you and follow these simple tips to help strike a healthy balance:

What steps can I take to avoid negative consequences?

Understand your digital footprint – the combination of all the things you do online. It's easy for people to make the connections between your different social media accounts and build up a picture of you. It's worth occasionally Googling yourself or using a specialist search engine like pipl.com to see what's out there.

While it is a good idea to assume nothing you post on social media will stay private, you should still check the privacy settings for the social media tools you use, especially if you're posting your original creative content.

Be aware that fraudsters and scammers use social media too. Don't assume everyone is who they claim to be, and use the same care when following links or opening attachments that you would when reading an email. Also be careful to keep your social media secure. Use a good password – we suggest three random words strung together. Consider turning on Two Factor authentication if it is available; this feature sends a confirmation text to your phone before allowing access to your social media account from an unfamiliar device.

Social media is a great way to discuss and challenge people's ideas, but things can get out of hand and you could say something you regret. Take a break if things are heating up. More generally, having an occasional break from social media can be a healthy thing to do.

If you have a disagreement with or a complaint about another student, a member of Nexus ICA Staff, or Nexus ICA itself, there are channels other than social media that are more effective in resolving matters. Consider all your options before posting to social media, such as those outlined in the Dealing with Unacceptable Behaviour Guidelines.

How to report bullying and harassment on social media

At Nexus ICA we take the bullying and harassment of another individual very seriously. If you're being harassed or bullied on social media, there are a number of options available to you. You can discuss the issue with your personal tutor, or another member of staff to discuss your options. If you consider that you are being bullied or harassed by a member of staff or another student, see also the advice in Nexus ICA's Dealing with Unacceptable Behaviour Guidelines.